WHEN some three weeks ago the French delegation at Evian suspended its talks with the representatives of the F.L.N., the French spokesman tied the resumption of the talks to the emergence of a new and positive development.

News emanating both from Paris and from Tunis indicates that the talks may reopen shortly. Does this mean that a new element of hope has entered into the negotiations and that the opposing parties have shifted from what looked, during the first round, like absolutely opposed and uncompromising positions?

At first glance, this would not seem to be the case. No new element of hope has entered into the protracted conversations, but for the first time President de Gaulle seems in a hurry. While up to now he has handled the Algerian affair as though time was expendable, he is now the one who wants to precipitate the peace. The essential reason for this new attitude seems to be the approaching international crisis over Berlin. President de Gaulle is more pessimistic about this crisis than his American and British allies and wants his hands free in Algeria to tackle Berlin. It means that he wants the Algerian problem to be settled or to embark on the road of settlement before the autumn. But President de Gaulle knows well that the F.L.N. will reap the benefit from this French desire for a rapid settlement by demanding even greater concessions than in the past.

Therefore the President has put his cards on the table: if no satisfactory settlement is forthcoming, the F.L.N. will be obliged to partition Algeria. Under partition, the European population and the Moslems faithful to France would be reduced to the coastal plain with a corridor leading to the Sahara. In this region more than 75 per cent of Algeria's industrial and agricultural resources are concentrated. The position of France is now clear: association, with strong guarantees for the European population, or partition.

To these alternatives—association or partition—the F.L.N. has answered in the last few days with massive and bloody demonstrations aimed at showing that partition is impracticable and would confront the French with a far more complex crisis than the one they presently face. In particular, by mobilizing the Moslems of the proposed French Zone of Algeria—nearly half a million against 300,000 Europeans—it has proved that even in the heart of a future French zone there would be a fifth column of tremendous power. The only solution would be, then, for the French to expect most of the Moslems from the French zone, which would cripple it economically and create a new refugee problem. But like other difficult solutions, it may become unworkable.

France and the F.L.N. have also lately been active on the Sahara diplomatic front. Various F.L.N. delegations have visited or will visit Tunisia, Morocco and Mali, trying to mould a common front of all countries bordering the Sahara desert. The F.L.N. is promising them a substantial part of the Sahara's resources in exchange for recognition of Algerian sovereignty over the desert. The French are countering with their own plans. These envisage the ceding of only a part of Saharan Algeria, the rest to be administered jointly by a board comprising the countries bordering the desert together with France. In spite of their feeling of solidarity with the F.L.N. there is no doubt that the French plan may appeal more to Algeria's neighbours than the F.L.N. promises.

Most observers feel that room exists for concessions on the Sahara and over guarantees for the European settlers on the side of the F.L.N. If concessions are made on these two crucial points, agreement, as difficult as it may seem, is still possible.

Eichmann Feels Moral, But Not Legal, Blame

Adolf Eichmann told the Jerusalem District Court on Friday that he felt a moral responsibility for the murder of millions of Jews, but no legal responsibility. On the first day of his cross-examination by the Attorney General, Mr. Gideon Hausner, the prisoner claimed to have been the recipient of orders, not their giver, and said that he could do nothing but obey. Eichmann would not agree to Mr. Hausner's suggestion that certain of his statements and actions were those of an anti-Semite. But he did admit that he had joined the anti-Jewish Nazi Party and the S.S. of his own free will and that he had never tried to resign from them.

108 Czech Miners Killed in Fire

FRAGUE. — Fire was still raging yesterday in the Czech colliery where 108 miners died on Friday night after a gas explosion. Rescue workers have given up hope of finding anyone alive. "There is definitely now no hope of saving anyone," an official at Dukla colliery, near the Ostrava village of Dolna Sucha, said. It was the country's worst postwar mine disaster, and its cause was not yet known. An explosion started the fire at 3.17 p.m. on Friday and it spread rapidly. Rescue teams were rushed from the entire coal basin in the Carpathian mountains and they battled the blaze until yesterday morning, without, however, being able to save the miners.

Dominican Radio Burned in Riots

CHUQUA TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic. — The Government-controlled radio, back on the air after mob violence knocked it out for eight hours, warned the Dominican people yesterday that any new demonstrations would be dealt with severely. Eight thousand persons poured through the streets on Friday night, clashed with police and set fire to Radio Caribe.

Fighting broke out as supporters of slain dictator Gen. Rafael Trujillo struck back at the first anti-Government demonstration in the Dominican Republic in 31 years. The Trujillo backers invaded the headquarters of the opposition Dominican Popular Movement (DPM), wrecked the furniture and set the building afire. The outbreaks occurred during the first day of open opposition political activity permitted by the successors of the dictator. President Balaguer had pledged more freedom and political reforms after Trujillo's assassination, May 30.

TURKEY VOTES

ISTANBUL (UPI). — Turkey yesterday voted in a referendum on the constitution drafted jointly by the military junta which overthrew the Menderes regime 14 months ago and by the various political parties.

UAR Buying Space Rockets in U.S.

WASHINGTON. — A New York Republican Senator and a Democratic Representative yesterday condemned the U.S. State Department decision to allow the UAR to buy altitude rockets from private American firms and questioned Cairo's intentions in applying for them. The State Department spokesman announced on Friday that export licenses would be granted to enable the UAR to buy experimental rockets. The spokesman, Mr. Lincoln White, said "appropriate assurances" had been received from the UAR Government that the rockets would be used solely for peaceful purposes. He said they would be used for meteorological research. He did not disclose their number nor their name of the manufacturer. Asked if Israel would also be able to purchase similar rockets from the U.S. Mr. White said Israel had applied. State Department sources said later that Israeli applications, if filed, would be studied in due course.

Defence Department sources said that Israel has been seeking rockets and components in Washington for several years though not of this particular type. New York Senator Kenneth Keating yesterday sent telegrams to the Secretaries of State and of Commerce saying: "On the basis of the past belittled record of the UAR, I have serious reservations about how these rockets may be used. What guarantees has the U.S. received that they will be utilized for meteorological or other peaceful purposes and not for military and political purposes?" Another New York Congressman, Mr. William Pitts Ryan, pointed out in a statement that the UAR does not have any scientific programme in which the rockets could be used. He said he believed they would be used for propaganda purposes in connection with a July 25 celebration of Nasser's rise to power. He urged Secretary of State Dean Rusk to suspend the export license.

Mr. Ryan added: "It is possible that by analyzing the components and fuel of these rockets, the UAR can obtain information on the rocket's design and construction. This would be a serious threat to the U.S. space programme." "The New York Times" said on Friday that the U.S. Space Administration would like Cairo to join the growing international programme of rocket research.

"Washington, likewise, must be pleased that Cairo turned earlier in the year attempted to obtain American rockets in time for firing this month, presumably in an effort to rival Israel's rocket programme."

"The scientific objective of the proposed shot — to release a sodium vapour trail in the upper atmosphere — is identical with that of the shot launched by Israel on Wednesday. Some weeks ago, the Space Administration notified Cairo that achievement of a rocket shot of scientific value on such a scale was not practicable. The UAR then went into the open market."

"The UAR may have wished to achieve a launching in time for the anniversary of the coup that brought the Nasser regime to power on July 23. It also presumably knew of Israeli preparations for the firing of Shavit II. The Space Administration confirmed on Thursday that it had been approached by Cairo scientists. It said that while unable to participate in a programme with such brief notice, it was interested in one that would not be hurried."

SEUL PUBLICITY Mission to Israel

A South Korean Government delegation is due tomorrow for a two-day visit as part of a world-wide campaign to explain the aims and political attitudes of the new regime in Seoul. It was announced in Jerusalem on Friday. The team that is coming to Israel to meet the Prime Minister and the Foreign Minister comprises the South Korean Ambassador to London, Mr. Yong Shik Kim; Lt.-Colonel Dong Hwan Kim; Dr. H. Yung Chung, who is Professor of Law at Seoul University, and Mr. Kwang Jung Song, First Secretary to the Embassy in London.

Britain Starts To Thin Out Troops In Kuwait

KUWAIT (AP). — Air Marshal Sir Charles Elworthy, commander-in-chief of British Middle East Forces, arrived yesterday to supervise defence cuts in the British defence force in Kuwait. Exactly one week after the threat of annexation by Iraq the big turn-round in the British defence force in Kuwait was under way. Two companies of the British Coldstream Guards flew out to Bahrain in the Persian Gulf on Friday. But there is no sign of a large-scale withdrawal. Military sources said the next to go probably will be men of the parachute units brought here from Cyprus and the United Kingdom. They will go either to Cyprus or to Kenya.

The whole of the 24th brigade, Britain's "fire brigade" which is normally stationed in Kenya, is now in Kuwait. As a result, British strength in Kenya would be dangerously low in case of trouble there or elsewhere in the Middle East.

Russia Vetoes U.K. Resolution

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters). — The U.N. Security Council on Friday night wound up its Kuwait debate without adopting any resolution. The U.S. resolution failed and was replaced by a Russian veto. The Council President, Dr. Leopoldo Benites, Ecuador, expressed "deep concern" over the failure to adopt a resolution and said the Council would remain vigilant in watching the dangerous situation which still unfortunately exists. He said he would be ready to reconsider the matter if circumstances warranted it. The UAR resolution, backed by the Soviet Union, called for the immediate withdrawal of British forces from Kuwait. It received only three votes, eight countries abstaining.

The British resolution called for recognition of an independent Kuwait, welcomed constructive action by the Arab League, and suggested the Council keep the Kuwait situation under review. This got seven affirmative votes, with the Soviet Union the only negative vote. The UAR, Ceylon and Ecuador abstained.

Kuwait's representative, Abdul Aziz Hussain, said his country still felt its independence was threatened and regretted that the Council had been unable to adopt a resolution.

DAG DELAYS WAR TRIP

UNITED NATIONS (UPI). — Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld announced on Friday that due to current developments here in connection with the Kuwait situation he was postponing his proposed trip to Cairo next week and expects to visit there instead some time in August.

K Ups Defence Budget, Stops Reductions in Armed Forces

Kennedy Calls in Advisers Urges Signing German Treaty

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. — President Kennedy yesterday conferred, ashore and afloat, with three of his key advisers on Germany and Berlin and Mr. Khrushchev's latest announcement. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defence Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, the President's military representative, flew here from Washington for a general review of the German situation with particular emphasis on Berlin. White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the meeting involved no new crisis or emergency, but was another of a series of continuing discussions between Mr. Kennedy and his high-ranking diplomatic and military advisers. The U.S. yesterday sent to the NATO Council in Paris the text of a note rejecting Mr. Khrushchev's demands on Berlin and Germany. The note, which replies to Mr. Khrushchev's President Kennedy in Vienna on June 4, is expected to go to Moscow early next week, diplomatic sources said. The sources said the note, completed on Friday night at the State Department in talks between Mr. Rusk, the British and French Ambassadors and the West German Charge d'Affaires, rejected Mr. Khrushchev's demands and re-emphasized the West's determination to stay in West Berlin.

The note, according to these sources, left the door open for discussions with the Soviet Union on the basis of self-determination of the German people. But it would not make a specific proposal for negotiation, because the West viewed the Berlin crisis as Soviet-manufactured. Bid to Murder U.S. Envoy in Saigon. SAIGON (Reuters). — Police were last night hunting for two men who tried to assassinate the U.S. Ambassador, Mr. Frederick Nolting, with grenades as he drove through a crowded main street in his official car. The grenade hit the roof of the car and lodged without exploding. The envoy was unhurt.

WASHINGTON (AP). — President Kennedy yesterday proclaimed a $3,500m. increase in the Soviet Union's military budget for 1961 to meet what he called Western threats. In a rocket-voicing speech at the Kremlin to Soviet military leaders, Mr. Khrushchev also disclosed a Government decree to cut a planned cut in the numbers of the armed forces and said he would keep them at full strength. In January 1960, the Supreme Soviet voted a 1,300,000-man reduction in the forces during 1960 and 1961, which at that time numbered 3,625,000. The Premier made no secret of the fact that the new Soviet moves were made because the Western powers had refused to yield to the Soviet Union on the subject of a German peace treaty and West Berlin. In his speech, he discounted President de Gaulle's order bringing home a French division from Algeria for use in Europe. "It is not decisions but rockets with hydrogen and atomic warheads which will determine the issue," he told the graduating classes. This year's Soviet military budget had been cut four per cent to 9,950m. rubles. But there was also a scientific budget of 4,600m. rubles and it was impossible to check what military items were included in various other budgets. Defence expenditure will now be increased to 12,350m. rubles.

Mr. Khrushchev insisted that his orders — which, strikingly, have not had to be submitted to any form of parliamentary consideration — were in retaliation for President Kennedy's request to Congress for a rise in American military spending. He once again urged that Mr. Kennedy, Gen. de Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan sit down at a conference table and sign a peace treaty with Germany, but he insisted this treaty must leave the Communists in power in present-day East Germany. He said the Soviet Government "will very much regret it if any of our former allies will not sign together with us the German peace treaty, and if West Germany refuses to accept the hard of reconciliation extended to her by the Socialist states."

Appeal for Wisdom

In his speech yesterday the Premier appealed to the leaders of the U.S., France and Britain to "display wisdom" and join in a conference to negotiate a peace treaty with Germany. He said Soviet procedures for concluding a peace treaty with Communist East Germany would conform strictly to accepted international practices. "After the conclusion of the treaty the Soviet Union will lay down all commitments which it had hitherto discharged on the communication issues with West Berlin," he said. Asserting that the Western leaders showed an "inclination to cooperate with the USSR in concluding a German peace treaty," Mr. Khrushchev said that threatening notes had appeared in the statements of the Western powers. However, he went on: "We must not let our fear of the peace. We must not let the atmosphere, must not bring matters to a conflict."

Mr. Khrushchev said the Soviet Union was "ready to provide the most far-reaching guarantees with regard to West Berlin."

He expressed agreement with a recent statement by President Kennedy that any

by the scientific department of the Defense Ministry and which can be used to prepare fuels of different types for rockets.

While this rocket was not very large, it is believed that it would not be impossible to increase the scale without much reengineering. It is a closely-guarded secret what proportion of the total weight consisted of fuel, as this would apparently give a clue as to its nature. It appears to be an equally well-guarded mystery why the first rocket was called "Shavit 2," but it is authoritatively known that there was no "Shavit 1" that misfired. Official sources also say that the name was chosen at the last moment as a phrase that had been used privately by the people engaged on the research was considered unsuitable, and that the "2" has no significance at all.

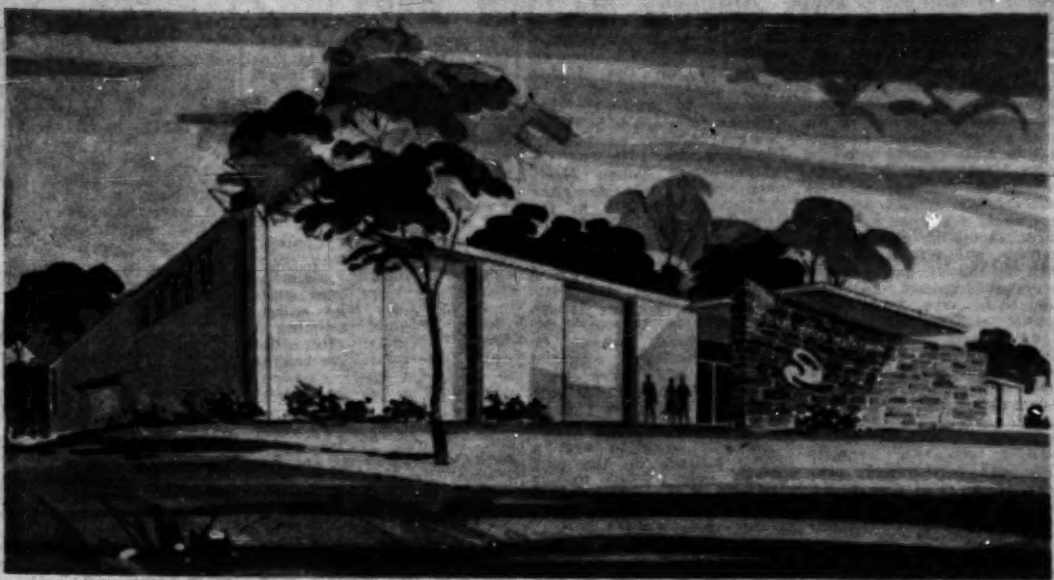

Other sources have offered various explanations: that there had been a miniature prototype; or else that "Shavit" is an Egyptian word meaning "to rise" or "to be born," and that the rocket was a new model that was started earlier and has not been completed; or possibly "Shavit" is an Egyptian word meaning "to rise" or "to be born," and that the rocket was a new model that was started earlier and has not been completed; or possibly "Shavit" is an Egyptian word meaning "to rise" or "to be born," and that the rocket was a new model that was started earlier and has not been completed.

American Histadrut Friends' Tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Isaac H. Taylor

Artist's conception of the Isaac Taylor Youth Centre at Kiryat Yovel.

A Centre for the Whole Community

By PHILIP GILLON
Jerusalem Post Reporter

THE Isaac Taylor Community Centre (in Kiryat Yovel) is a most exciting attempt to adapt a difficult terrain and strictly functional concepts of design to Israel's latest ideas of community needs.

It has been accepted — at long last — that a community centre must cater for people of all ages and should not be limited to a hall and reading-room. The intention is to attract both the young, their parents and their grandparents to the centre. The difficulty, of course, is that older people may want a quiet corner to play chess while the young enjoy screaming at each other while engaged in sport. Can these different activities be reconciled in one building?

No Easy Side

The Taylor Centre is built on a sharply sloping hillside immediately below the Shikun Havaikim of Kiryat Yovel. It faces east, with a wadi immediately below it. It was obviously not the easiest site for an architect to mould into a multi-functional building.

Architect David Reznik has exploited the sharp slope most ingeniously. The entrance to the Centre gives the impression of a low, one-storey building protected from the west wind by a graceful curved wall. But from the side, the building is seen to funnel down into a massive end wall. The entrance is through large, wide and inviting doors. Inside there is a spacious lounge, where people can sit in comfortable arm-chairs and relax.

On the right-hand side is the door to the auditorium.

This is large enough to accommodate 300 people and the sharp slope has been used to give everyone complete vision of the stage below. The height of the auditorium is reduced at the top and increases to a maximum at stage level. Reznik has specially designed very comfortable wooden chairs which are fixed to long metal bars and have no legs. He is the first man in Israel to plan chairs for people who are more than 5' 6" in height and to allow room for spectators to pass a person in his seat without trampling all over his corns. Good acoustics are obtained by concrete pillars and a coiled ceiling.

On the other side of the lounge is a quiet room for games like chess and for the reading of newspapers. It has built-in cupboards to house the games, with shelves on top for newspapers and magazines. This room abuts a pleasant central patio, where old people can spend enjoyable mornings during the winter basking in the sun.

Attractive Effect

The reading-room leads into the library. The highlight of this room is a most ingenious solution to the problem of the chimney for the waste products of the central heating apparatus directly below: this chimney has to pass through the centre of the library. Reznik has lined it around most attractively with white bricks, to which is added a section of large open shelves in similar brick where art books and other mighty tomes will be kept. The effect is most attractive.

From the central lounge there are steps leading down to a lower level where a central milk bar and a restaurant are located. One side-door goes straight on to the stage of the auditorium, which is built flush with the floor of the restaurant. The opposite door leads into the gymnasium, complete with showers for both boys and girls.

The overall effect is of adequate divisions between the different functions of the Centre. The auditorium is separated from the reading-room by the lounge upstairs and from the gymnasium by the restaurant downstairs. The gymnasium is separated from the reading-room and library because it is on a lower level. Presumably the pressure on the "quiet" facilities will be greatest during the morning and the demand for sport will be greatest during the late afternoon, after school, and in the evenings. But it is possible to imagine the use of all the facilities simultaneously.

The Centre is on an area of four dunams which has been landscaped by the architects and includes provision for sports grounds and for a swimming-bath. The players will be removed as far as possible from their studios elders in the reading-room and library. The garden is being beautifully integrated into the hillside.

Reznik has made the most possible use of concrete and of materials which are strong but abundant and cheap. No effort has been made to introduce fancy decorations or artistic but costly aesthetic effects. At the same time, several innovations have been incorporated to make the building intimate and attractive. The cost to date is only IL200,000, provided by Mr. Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Taylor dine with a close personal friend, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, with whom they have worked for a number of worthy causes.

By REGINA DALNY

THE gymnasium of the Isaac Taylor Community Centre in Kiryat Yovel is the best equipped of its type in Jerusalem. Israel has recognized at long last that sport and physical fitness are basic rights of the young, and that the community is under an obligation to provide them with facilities. Mr. Reuven Dafni, the Director of the Sport and Physical Education Authority, now insists that every new school that is built must have a gymnasium. It is to be hoped that they will be as well equipped as the Kiryat Yovel Centre.

All the gymnasium equipment was made at Kibbutz Kfar Giladi by kibbutz member Ya'acov Zaal. It is not only of international standard but includes a number of ingenious ideas of his own. These are so impressive that the visiting gymnasts at the recent Hapoel International meeting said that Zaal's equipment is the best they have ever seen. One of his innovations is so simple that it is amazing that nobody thought of it before; wherever possible he has provided wheels which can be lowered into position by means of a pulley. Any athlete who has exhausted his strength moving the "horse" instead of jumping over it, will look with awe on a small boy wheeling it around the floor into the required position. Zaal has placed a surveyor's instrument into the balancing bar to free gymnasts from the crazy-making problem of making sure that it is level. The horizontal bars can be unsecured when the entire floor space is needed. All the equipment is mounted, wherever possible, on light but strong metal frames.

Ya'acov Zaal, a teacher of gymnastics for the last 20 years at Kfar Giladi, specially went to Olympic Champion Agnes Keleti in Europe to study both gymnastics and the equipment used by gymnasts. His ideas for improvements came from watching the great athletes struggling with almost overwhelming technical problems before they could perform her astonishing feats of balance and fitness. He came back to Israel determined to enable Israeli youngsters to enjoy to the full the sport he loves. As a result, he has developed one of the strange kibbutz industries which flourish so dynamically in Israel. It will be a great boon for Kiryat Yovel when its youth enjoy its own beautiful "Ya'acov Zaal" equipment instead of sitting in amorphous cinema.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

ANNAPOIS, MARYLAND

June 19, 1961

To Our Friends Attending the Dedication Ceremony at the Isaac Taylor Youth Centre, Jerusalem:

My good friend, Isaac Taylor, has graciously consented to serve as my courier to bring to you my personal greetings and to present to you a flag of the Free State of Maryland. Please accept it as a token of the bond of friendship and affection which links my State and Your country.

I know you will display it proudly, and I hope it will serve to remind you of the citizens of Maryland who are wishing for your good health, happiness and a determination to preserve the peace of the world.

With kindest personal regards, I am,

Sincerely,

Millard E. Tawes

GOVERNOR

I KNOW ISAAC TAYLOR

By Dr. HERMAN SEIDEL
of Baltimore, Maryland

I have had the rare pleasure of knowing and working with Isaac Taylor for about 40 years. Our close association has been mainly in the areas of Zionism and Israel.

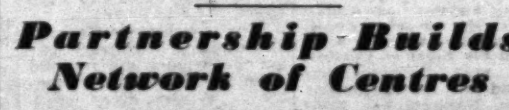

As a people, we Jews have never suffered a lack of philanthropists and community workers. Historic needs and pressures have effectively co-operated to encourage such development. Merely being a humanitarian need not, and indeed does not, always evoke unusual admiration and appreciation. And if I confess my deep esteem of Isaac Taylor, even to the degree of veneration, it is because of his noble way of doing all the good and great things he has been doing, particularly for Zionism before the State was established and since it has become a fact.

Mr. Taylor's interest in Zionism and the State of Israel dates back to the early 'twenties. He has always been an indefatigable worker and a most generous contributor. At the same time he has always been most unassuming and self-effacing. He has never looked for honour or worldly reward.

Isaac Taylor is not a financial tycoon. His gifts are generous because he oversteps his limits — and has learned to "specialize in his giving."

His specialty is Israel, and the greatest measure of his love is concentrated on the youth of Israel. This is best evidenced by his generous participation in the construction and establishment of the Youth Centre, or as he would like to have it known — the Community Centre at Kiryat Yovel, Jerusalem.

To this establishment he has not only given his money, but also his heart. He has a great attachment for this centre and looks upon the dedication today not as a finale, but rather as the beginning of a great new action for the surrounding community.

Partnership Builds Network of Centres

Jerusalem Post Reporter

THE partnership between American Jewry and the Israeli labour movement, which finds concrete expression in the American Histadrut Campaign, has over the years assisted the up-building of our dynamic society. It has in no small measure aided the Histadrut in meeting one of the greatest challenges of our developing society: the education of our youth and its fuller social integration. The provision of youth centres, mainly in immigrant concentrations, has really served this great purpose in that it provides the youngsters with a place for leisure, sports and cultural activities — in fact, home of their own, which is of importance not only in meeting human needs but in weaving the communities into one nation.

This was stated by the Histadrut Treasurer, Mr. Yehoshua Levi, in an interview with The Jerusalem Post in his office on the third floor of the Histadrut H.Q. in Tel Aviv. Mr. Levi is the man in the Histadrut "Cabinet" who is in charge of this end of the Histadrut overseas campaign.

Apart from Kiryat Yovel, Histadrut youth centres have been constructed with the aid of American Jews at Migdal Ashdon (the centre is named for Harry Glickman of Minneapolis, at the Ayanot farm school (for Max Sterman of Boston), in Haifa (built by the Farband branch of Montreal) and in Migdal Ha'emek (the Abe Hamlin youth centre).

Under construction at present are the Walter Reuther Youth Centre and the J. M. Lazarus Centre in Holon (Mr. Lazarus is from Wilmington, Pa.), and the Ed Miller Centre in Tel Aviv's Hatikva Quarter (Mr. Miller is a leading member of the Chicago Hotel and Restaurant Workers' Union).

Now on the drawing board are the Isaac Litwak Centre in Acre and the large youth and sports centre in Elit to be built with the help of a Bostonian sympathizer. Other centres are on the way in the immigrant towns of Ramat and Lyda.

Latest Gift Only One of Many

A FEW days before the opening of the Isaac Taylor Community Centre, Mr. Taylor was there together with members of the Jerusalem Labour Council, watching workmen getting the handsome building ready for the ceremony. It is a community centre, he said — stressing the word community — open to everyone.

Mr. Isaac Henry Taylor, of Ellicott City, Baltimore, Maryland — "Washington" is a suburb of Ellicott City — is a man who is continually thinking up new projects and these projects are coming more and more to mean Israel campaigns, philanthropy, and business investment.

It began in Elit, during his first visit to this country in 1933 (the present one is his eighth). Feeling the heat, he had air-conditioning installed in an Elit school. Then he helped build a synagogue and presented it with a valuable Sefer Tora. He remembers Elit's Hasidic Nenner with a smile: like all mayors, he wanted to have everything for his town.

Mr. Taylor's current concern is Kiryat Yovel, which immigration has transformed into a self-contained town. Beginning this year, a boy and a girl from Kiryat Yovel will annually be awarded scholarships to continue their education at the Technion, the Kfar Silver agricultural school, and high school plus university — six scholarships every year. An Isaac Taylor Scholarship Fund has been established for this purpose.

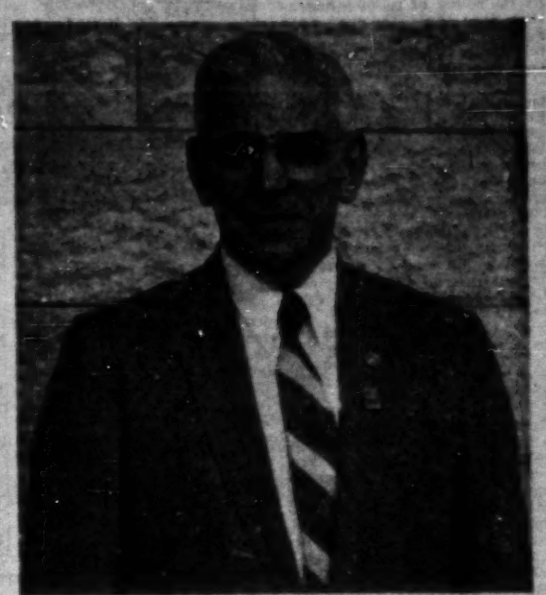

Dream Come True

But focus is the Centre — one of a network of such institutions planned throughout the country by the Histadrut and largely financed by donors from abroad. Latest of whom has been Walter Reuther. Mr. Taylor himself belonged to a youth centre when he was a boy, so he has no difficulty in making a choice when presented with a list of possibilities of projects he could finance. So far he has provided IL200,000 for the Centre, and now he wants to add books for the library, a piano, athletic equipment and other items.

The Centre will serve Kiryat Yovel's cultural, recreational and sports activities for adults as well as for youth. The needs it meets are in direct proportion to the suburb's expanding population, now well past the 20,000 mark. Mr. Taylor has a letter written to him after the cornerstone laying by a local resident who came here from the U.S. three years ago and who is living here with her husband on their social security. She wrote that, observing the children of Kiryat Yovel, she had always dreamed of someone who would do for them what Mr. Taylor has done now.

Mr. Taylor's philanthropic contributions to Israel — $300,000 at the latest count — are doubled by another quarter of a million dollars more invested in enterprises: citrus groves, Bonds, the Hadera paper mill, and recently the Sheraton Hotel in Tel Aviv. He says they all yield good dividends, which he ploughs back into other local investments.

With all this money, he does not look like someone who can drive a hard deal. He has a benign look behind his spectacles, but his eyes are sharp and his insight is prodigious. Born in Baltimore 68 years ago to immigrant parents from Pinsk, he left school at 14 to learn the jewellery trade, was a manufacturing jeweller, watchmaker and engraver and returned to school to graduate from the Pennsylvania College of Optics and Ophthalmology. He married Rose Caplan, who is here with him, and opened a jewellery and optics store in Ellicott City. Afterwards he entered the furniture business, and in 1939 he took over a nearby 100-bed hospital, which became the Taylor Manor, for psychiatric treatment. He is the hospital's administrator, and his son, Dr. Irving Taylor, its Medical Director. His other son, Dr. Harold Taylor, is a chemist.

Taylor's Zionist activity goes back to the days of the Balfour Declaration. Since then he has risen to the top ranks of Baltimore's Jewish leadership. He was instrumental in arranging the UJA's first campaign throughout Maryland. A past President of the Baltimore Zionist Council, he is a vice-president of Amap; honorary chairman of the Histadrut Campaign of Baltimore; and past chairman of Bonds in Baltimore. He also plays an important part in affairs of the American Zionist Committee for Public Affairs and the American Jewish Congress, he is Vice-Chairman of the J.N.F. in Baltimore, besides being on the board of several other Jewish organizations. Add to this, his community activities in Ellicott City: he has been President of the School Board of Howard County and of the Rotary Club; he is Vice-President of the Central Bank of Howard County, etc.

A column representing Maryland in the Freedom Forest here (there is to be a column for every State of the Union) is to bear Mr. Taylor's name. The Baltimore Histadrut Campaign, associated with the Kiryat Yovel Centre, has in its 33 years of existence been instrumental in the construction of Israeli institutions in excess of a million dollars. Taylor says that he, like other business men in America, supports the Histadrut because it is a constructive force in building this country. And "what's good for Israel is good for me."

new decision on West Berlin should not jeopardize the rights of the city's population to make an independent choice as free peoples, and added, "Our proposals fully meet this requirement."

"It is perfectly natural, however, that any decision on West Berlin must reckon with the fact that it is in the heart of a sovereign state and that all West Berlin's communications with the outside world pass through the territory of this state."

In negotiating with East Germany, Mr. Khrushchev said, the Soviet Union will bring its own draft proposals to the conference table. "Let the Western powers submit their proposals, their draft for a peaceful settlement," he said.

"We shall discuss all proposals and accept the one that will best promote the consolidation of peace and take proper account of the interests and sovereignty of all states."

Mr. Khrushchev told the Kremlin audience, "We shall sign the peace treaty (with East Germany) and order our armed forces to administer a worthy rebuff to any aggressor if he raises his hand against the Soviet Union or our friends."

At the reception, Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Malinovsky warned the Western world that it will not remain outside the reach of any atomic blows struck over Berlin.

After stressing that the Soviet Union is determined to block the way to war, Malinovsky added: "At the same time we shall continue enhancing still further our combat preparedness, continuing equipping our army with first-class, up-to-date weapons because we are compelled to do so by the aggressive forces of imperialism."

Shavit, Refugees in Elections

Eshkol: Won't Let Refugees Back

Finance Minister Levi Eshkol, speaking in Natanya on Friday night, declared: "We may well have to say 'no' to the United Nations should they decide on returning the refugees. It is not possible for them to return in large numbers."

He criticized the other parties for implying that any new project implemented by the State was election propaganda. "We cannot stop the machine from working, just because it's election time," Mr. Eshkol said, noting that the beginning of construction on the Ashdod deep sea harbour would begin shortly as would work on the large industrial complex in the Ezer Region in the Negev.

Alon: Need Policy Planning Committee

Mr. Yipal Alon of Ashdod Ha'Avoda, addressing an election rally in Haifa on Friday night, called for a national policy planning committee to evolve a systematic and well-thought-out counter-policy to the Arabs and put an end to the competition between the Ministries of Foreign Affairs and Defence in the next Knesset. His party would also insist on free and compulsory secondary schooling, with vocational training for all to give children an equal chance and put the nation ahead; the formulation of a basic constitution to prevent frivolous changes in our laws.

Speaking to an audience of nearly 1,000 who cheered his appearance after his absence in England, Mr. Alon hit Ma'ariv for the handling of the rocket shot. By ostentatious publicity and inviting only Army and Defence Ministry personnel, it had emphasized the military aspect of the issue, thus giving the UAR a golden opportunity for demanding rockets as a balance.

Golan: Mapai Caught in Personality Cult

Mapai and its leaders are creating a "personality cult" in declaring that the State needs a leader who is regarded as invincible by the enemy, Mr. Yitzhak Golan M.K. told a Liberal Party rally in Jaffa, declaring that victory depends on the nation as a whole and not on one man alone.

In She'ar Yashuv, Mr. Golan accused Mr. Ben-Gurion of "yearning for sovereignty

Ben-Eliezer: Public Opinion Against B.G.

Mr. Aryeh Ben-Eliezer, M.K., told a Herut election rally in Tel Aviv that while "Ma'ariv asks the nation to vote for the personality cult — for the invincible Golda — Ma'ariv wanted a Government of men of flesh and blood who are prepared to admit their mistakes. He added that Mr. Ben-Gurion was defeated by Pinhas Lavon as far as public opinion is concerned, and he would have been defeated in the Ma'ariv Central Committee if Eshkol had not betrayed Lavon."

Dayan: Adamant On Refugees Issue

Agriculture Minister Moshe Dayan, in Haifa, declared that "Israel will not give in to the pressure of friendly nations to allow back the Arab refugees." The Arab refugee problem was a political and not a resettlement issue, because they can be settled in the immense empty spaces of the Arab states, he said, and added that even if Israel's stand caused friction with friendly countries, "we will remain adamant in our stand."

The U.S. is indeed one of our friends, but the State Department formulates American and not Israeli policy, he said. Adlai Stevenson does not care how we will live in Israel after we have been flooded by tens of thousands of refugees, he declared, referring to the statement of the U.S. representative at the U.N. Mr. Adlai Stevenson, that it should be left for the refugees to decide whether to return to Israel or be resettled elsewhere.

Sharet: Nation Needs Mapai Victory

Mr. Moshe Sharet, M.K., Chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, told a Ma'ariv election rally in Petah Tikva on Friday night that while "I have many complaints against my party, the general welfare demands the strengthening of Mapai."

Addressing an audience of more than 1,500 at the Hechal at another meeting, in She'ar Yashuv, Mr. Sharet declared that the fact that the Fourth Knesset was short-lived could not be blamed on

But he added that Britain must realize that times have changed and gunboat diplomacy is out of fashion. He said that he had been expansionist ambitions, he would have occupied Kuwait before announcing Iraq's peaceful settlement," he said.

Kassem supported this claim with historical, sociological and philosophical arguments.

Meanwhile, a Kuwaiti official said Iraqi forces were still building up. The Kuwaiti Army commander, Brig. Muharak Abdullah Jaber e-Sabah, declared: "We are ready to fight. We will fight with every power we have. If Kassem will fight we will fight. If Kassem wants to talk we will talk."

In Cairo, Arab League Secretary-general Abdul Khalek Hassouna met with the Iraqi delegate to the League Council, Abdul Hussein al-Kofe, and the Saudi Ambassador, Mohamed al Zogheib.

The Iraqi delegate said he was seeking postponement of the Council's scheduled meeting Tuesday on Kuwait's application for membership until a later date "because the Arab nation is now facing danger and threats in the East and West."

He continued, in an interview with "Alkhabr al-Yom" that Britain "does not side with Israel against the Arabs. We do not give her any special assistance and we do not supply her with arms."

Nazareth Highlight of Volta President's Week-end Tour

The President of Upper Volta, M. Maurice Yameogo, yesterday wound up a visit by expressing his pleasure at having visited the city's holy places and at having met representatives of the Arab and Jewish communities living in peace and harmony.

M. Yameogo and his party were welcomed on the outskirts of Nazareth by the Mayor, Mr. Seif ed-Din Zuabi, and the Deputy Mayor, Mr. Nadin Batish, and a large number of civic, communal, religious and military dignitaries.

At the Well of the Virgin M. Yameogo — a devout Catholic — and his party drank from the holy waters and were greeted by Bishop Pius Giorgio Claparro, Vicar-General of the Latin Church in the Holy Land, Archbishop George Hakim, Head of the Greek Catholic Church, and Metropolitan Ilderou, Head of the Greek Orthodox Church.

Timing Unwise

In Rehovot, Mr. Ya'acov Meridor, M.K., told a Herut rally that he doubted "whether the timing and the publicity of the President's visit to the city of Nazareth was wise and beneficial."

"At any rate," he declared, "the publication of photographs of the Prime Minister taking part in the discussion before election time shows that this was not just a coincidence." The scientists had not required the presence of the Prime Minister in order to launch the rocket, he said.

Mapai M.K.s to Ignore Knesset 'Affair' Debate

TEL AVIV. — It was doubtful whether Mapai Knesset Members would take part in a special Knesset debate on the "affair," the Chairman of the Knesset Security and Foreign Affairs Committee, Mr. Argy, told a Ma'ariv election rally on Friday.

He was referring to reports of the intentions of various parties to convene a special session for the discussion of the "affair," the Chairman of the Knesset Security and Foreign Affairs Committee, Mr. Argy, told a Ma'ariv election rally on Friday.

"This conversation of the Nation's legislature into an election bazaar degrades the Knesset and Mapai should not help them in debating Israel's parliamentary system."

It is understood that should a Knesset debate on the "affair" be held, the Mapai Knesset Members would not attend the debate but announce that they would not take part in the discussion. Such an announcement would mean that no Mapai M.K., including Mr. Pinhas Lavon — including Mr. Pinhas Lavon — would be able to speak without infringing party discipline.

Mr. Lavon is expected back within the next fortnight.

Cross-Examination Ends in Cohen Trial

HAIFA. — The District Attorney Mr. Y. Bahalul on Friday completed his cross-examination of Aharon Cohen in the latter's espionage trial.

Mr. Cohen had been in the witness stand for a fortnight, testifying and being cross-examined mainly on cover, another defence witness was also heard in camera on Friday. The trial continues at the District Court today.

'Pocahontas' Reunion On July 17

A change in date has been announced for the reception to be given by Foreign Minister Golda Meir for American immigrants who arrived here 40 years ago on July 14, 1921 — on the P.O. Pocahontas, the same ship which brought Mrs. Meir to Palestine.

The reception will take place on July 17 and not July 14, as previously announced.

POPOVIC IN MOSCOW

MOSCOW (Reuters). — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said last night he hoped the current visit to Moscow of Yugoslav Foreign Minister Koca Popovic would be an exchange of opinions between the two governments to facilitate the further improvement of Soviet-Yugoslav relations.

England Wins 3rd Test in Three Days

LEEDS (AP). — England opening bowler Freddie Trueman with a match analysis of 11 for 58, wrecked Australia twice in the Third Test to enable England to win by eight wickets with more than two days to spare. Only left-hander Trevor Bailey (73 and 33) offered any resistance. England are now level with Australia in the 8-game series.

The scores:
Australia: 387 and 190
England: 299 and 63 for 2.

Rumanian Girl Leaps 1.9 Metres

VIENNA (AP). — Rumania's Yolanda Balas yesterday set up a new women's high jump record of 1.9 metres (6 feet 2 1/2 inches) at an international track-and-field meet at Budapest, Hungary.

The Olympic champion bettered her own official mark of 1.85 metres (6 feet 1 1/2 inches) which she established at Bucharest in July, 1960.

Aussie Wins Men's Singles at Wimbledon

LONDON (Reuters). — Rod Laver of Australia won the men's singles title in the Wimbledon lawn tennis championships beating Chuck McKinley of the United States in the final here Friday, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.

Laver was seeded number two, and McKinley number eight.

In the final of the women's Wimbledon tennis singles the first between two British girls for 47 years — Angela Mortimer, 29, yesterday beat 24-year-old Christine Truman 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 and sent a packed centre court crowd wild with delight.

Australians Roy Emerson and Neale Fraser defeated Bob Hewitt and Fred Stolle, Australia, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 to take the doubles crown.

Miss Jean Moffit, of the U.S., defeated Margaret Smith and Jan Lehane, of Australia, 6-3, 6-4 to win the women's doubles crown.

One Dead, Two Hurt In Car Accidents

TEL AVIV. — A 23-year-old motorcyclist, Nissan Ruzh, of Holon, died in Hadassah hospital yesterday morning, a short time after he collided with a taxi at Givat Heral in Tel Aviv. The taxi driver, Yitzhak Meir, of Jerusalem, was detained.

A two-year-old boy and a woman sustained slight injuries as a result of road accidents on Friday.

The child, Avraham Simha, was struck by a truck on the main Beisan road. The driver, David Sulta, was questioned by police.

Miss Zippora Lanberger, of Ellat, was brought to Kaplan hospital Friday after the car in which she was travelling overturned at kilometer 48 of the Plozet road. The driver, Norbert Hochman, also of Ellat, was not injured. (Itim)

Agreement on New Wage Scale For Government Labourers

Jerusalem Post Reporter
TEL AVIV. — An agreement on the introduction of new wage scales for 7,500 labourers and foremen in government employ was reached on Friday between the Civil Servants Union and the Civil Service Commission.

The new rate pertains to all public services, including the operational staff of the Railways. It will come into effect within the next six weeks, and the Union has demanded that, should difficulties arise, part of the raise be paid to the workers with the July wage packet.

The new scales were agreed upon a week ago at a meeting between the Union and the Director-General of the Finance Ministry, Dr. Y. Arnon. Accordingly, labourers will have a scale of eight grades, providing basic monthly salaries ranging from IL120 to IL185. Foremen will have four grades, with pay ranging from IL135 to IL190 per month.

In Haifa, the Railway workers said they had not seen the new pay scale, but they doubted whether it offered them the terms for which they had gone on strike. "Much depends, of course, on the grading of each man, but from what we were told about the scale during the past week, it appears as if it is going to provide another strike."

For the administrative staff of the Railways, the new scale brings more dismay. "Now the wage structure in the service as a whole will be completely upset. The officers will earn more than the strikers," was the general reaction.

Vegetable Board Votes Compulsory Grading

TEL AVIV. — Vegetable must be graded before being brought to market, under rules adopted unanimously on Friday by a plenary meeting of the Vegetable Marketing Board.

The Board also adopted a budget of IL700,000 for the current year — the same as last year's budget.

Cartels Council Voids Pharmacists Agreement

TEL AVIV. — The Cartels Council yesterday voided an agreement whereby Defence Ministry employees and members of the Maccabi and Otzar Ha'Avodah sick funds would be permitted to have drug prescriptions filled only at pharmacies affiliated to the Pharmacists' Association.

The Council ruled that such an agreement constitutes unfair economic pressure to compel non-members to join the Association. If the State believed that all pharmacists should be organized, the Council held, then it should pass a law to that effect.

In its ruling, the Council went on to say that although only six of the country's 336 pharmacies were not affiliated to the Association, the question was not one of numbers — for the minority was also part of the public, with its own rights and the rights of its customers to be protected. And a customer needing a pharmacy in an emergency might find that the only one in his area was non-affiliated, and his rights as a member of a sick fund might thus be prejudiced.

After a member of the Association had testified on behalf of the agreement, the Chief Physician of the Maccabi sick fund declared that "We derive no benefit from the fact that we are not permitted under the agreement to deal with non-affiliated pharmacists."

The Association was ordered to pay IL20 costs. (Itim)

Seven-Year-Old Drowns at Ashdod

ASHDOD. — A seven-year-old girl, Yafa Ben-Haim, drowned off the coast here at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. According to police, the child was alone.

Seven Hurt In Carmel Village Clash

Jerusalem Post Report
HAIFA. — Seven persons were injured — four of them seriously, including two pregnant women, during a fight with sticks and stones between members of two clans in the Druse village of Dalayot of Carmel yesterday afternoon.

The violence broke out when a member of the Kara clan attacked a member of the Halaby clan who was building a house under proper licence of the authorities. The Kara claimed that the house interfered with his rights. After an exchange of words between the two neighbours, backed up by their clansmen the two groups came to blows.

The police were rounding up suspects last night.

Invalids of War Against Nazis

The Organization of Invalid Veterans of the War Against the Nazis requests the following categories of persons to contact immediately the organization's offices: 1) persons with between 25 and 34 per cent disability who have not yet filled out compensation forms; 2) persons whose hands were amputated or injured; and persons who failed to submit their claims before the deadline.

HAIFA — Passenger Trains

begin to run again through-out the country on Friday morning, just in time for the heavy week-end traffic which would have greatly strained the bus services had they had to carry the load alone.

The resumption of rail traffic for goods on Thursday night and at 1 p.m. the following morning was the result of practically non-stop talks — broken only for a few hours of sleep — between the Railways' General Manager, Mr. Menahem Savidor, and the representatives of the strikers.

Although the strikers' Action Committee was never given official recognition, the regular Works Committee identified itself largely with the demands of the strikers.

On Friday, at 1 p.m., the ticket vendors, too, resumed work, after receiving a promise from Mr. Savidor that he would for a fair consideration of their demands for better working conditions. On the other hand, about 25 administrative workers in the Southern Division joined the strike of their colleagues in the north.

The strike of the office workers, if it continues, will lead within a week to a resumed standing of the railroads, because without power work and proper telephone service, the service will become paralyzed.

Mr. Savidor, however, is optimistic. He believes that the men will trust him to present their case of chronic underpayment to the Government and the Histadrut with vigour, and obtain better pay for them.

Accused Remains Composed as Cross-Examination Begins ... Except for 'Five Million' Statement

But I Never Meant the Jews...

Eichmann read the document to himself and then said, "I don't know if it's correct. This summing-up, it says, but I never meant the Jews." Mr. Hauser: I don't want to hear 'because.' I want an answer. Did you say 'Five million Jews' because of the war and because of this I'll jump with joy into the grave?' or did you say 'Five million Jews' with joy into the pit because of the Jews? The columns of the Red Army crashing forward and the North Sea, the number dead, that's not the Jews. Q. Then they did you speak of the Jews during your interrogation? A. As far as I remember, (at the end of the war) I was in the army, I was an officer, and there were other officers there. I did not expect to see any more Jews. I included everybody when I
